Fr. Craig

Dear Parishioners,

Not everyone at Mass received this exhortation in last week's homily and also for those who were out of town, I share it again.

The following was an exhortation by John Paul II and repeated later by Pope Francis directed primarily at the youth of today:

We need saints without veils and cassocks; we need saints with blue jeans and tennis shoes.

We need saints that go to the movies that listen to music and go out with their friends.

We need saints that put God in first place and who excel in the university.

We need saints who desire to pray each day and fall in love with purity and chastity.

We need modern saints of the 21st century, with spirituality for our time.

We need saints committed to the poor and to social change.

We need saints who live in the world, who sanctify the world, and who are not afraid to live in the world.

We need saints who drink Coca-Cola and eat hotdogs, but who intercede for others in prayer, who listen to iPod.

We need saints who love the Eucharist and who are not embarrassed to drink a beer and eat a pizza on the weekends with their friends.

We need saints who like theater, movies, dance, and sports.

We need sociable saints who are friends and joyful companions.

We need saints who are in the world and who know how to enjoy the good things of the world without becoming worldly or mundane.

Blessings,
Fr. Craig
